

COMPLIANCE & OPERATIONAL ASSESSMENTS / TRAINING (“COAT”)

INDEPENDENT. THOROUGH. KNOWLEDGEABLE.

Operational gaps and regulatory compliance violations may cause financial and/or reputational damage to entities who operate in the U.S. property and casualty insurance market, including insurers, fronting companies, InsurTechs, agents, managing general agents (“MGAs”), third-party administrators (“TPAs”), and others. The gaps and violations are typically caused by internal inefficiencies, lack of proper controls, insufficient analysis or testing of processes and/or unfamiliarity with regulatory requirements. Entities who are new to the insurance industry or have not previously been the recipient of a market conduct action are particularly vulnerable.

This damage often results from a regulatory inquiry or examination and may be inflicted through one or more penalties including cease and desist orders, consent orders, fines, license suspensions, or the loss of company’s certificate of authority. Operational gaps and compliance violations may also bring damages in possibly the most impactful form, that of long-term reputational risk and negative financial impact, such as devaluation of stock or a downgrade in AM Best rating.

PROCESS AND DOCUMENTATION REVIEW

Perr&Knight consultants will review a client's documentation (e.g., procedure documents, manuals, best practices) for primary insurance areas of operations (e.g., advertising, claims, licensing, regulatory compliance, policyholder services, underwriting) for completeness, compliance and efficiency based on our expertise and experience with regulatory requirements, industry best practices and DOI positions. Our consultants will also interview key staff to ascertain how operations are performed in practice and uncover gaps or areas of risk. We'll deliver a clear, detailed report with recommended actions and train our client's staff on how to implement the recommendations.

MARKET CONDUCT AND FINANCIAL EXAM READINESS

Perr&Knight consultants will review the client's current processes and documentation for responding to a Market Conduct inquiry/exam and/or a Financial Conditions Exam for effectiveness and alignment with expectations outlined by the NAIC Market Regulations Handbook, the NAIC Financial Conditions Handbook, MCM Training, Regulator guidance and Perr&Knight's past experience. Our experts will recommend changes to increase efficiency, avoid pitfalls and streamline communications between departments and with the examiners.

MARKET CONDUCT AND FINANCIAL EXAM CLOSURE

Perr&Knight can assist companies with closing out market regulation actions and exams based on our experience performing similar projects over the last several years and publicly available market conduct information. Our experienced consultants can assist the client with the following: review the initial violations and if applicable, recommend violations to be reconsidered by the regulator, review the draft report, suggest draft responses or review responses drafted by our clients for completeness. We can also assist with drafting corrective action plans that may include opportunities to mitigate regulatory fines or reputational harm.

MOCK MARKET CONDUCT EXAMS

Perr&Knight can help clients discover compliance gaps and prepare them for the inevitable (a real market conduct exam) by conducting a mock market conduct exam. Our consultants will put a client through the paces of an exam for one or more insurance areas of operation in order to simulate a targeted or more broad DOI exam. Perr&Knight consultants will perform a detailed examination of the output for the selected area of operation, such as a claim or underwriting file, to check for compliance with regulatory requirements, industry best practices, DOI positions and/or internal controls. We'll also review how our client navigates the mock exam and make recommendations on process changes to increase the efficiency and effectiveness of how the company responds to a real exam in the future.
